

“PRAYER” BOOK

Invocations, Declarations, and Affirmations

The word prayer has become a catch all term for all types of spirit communication. This is incorrect. Within prayer we have adopted an inherent behavior of begging. Begging is not a humble act but one that has lost the ability to see divine light in all of creation including himself. In many instances, the humility is false while the begging is real. When people say pray, they sometimes mean invocations, evocations (advanced concept), declarations, affirmations and so on. It is good practice to learn the difference, but this will take time. We use the word here for simplicity. Keep in mind, humility is required of all of us at all time. Humility means staying close to the ground. Being humble requires knowledge of what is needed to deliver our purpose and reminds us of our density. Begging is for those who cannot see light within themselves or others and find a reduction of inner value necessary to obtain favors. Our Creator does not require this. All of creation are equal. Show respect to the smallest and the biggest amongst you and begging will become obsolete.

Before you start: Raise your highest vibration using music or dance for a few minutes. If your vibration is very low, make sure you take time out and approach your shrine or altar with a clearer head. DO NOT be reactionary when working with your shrine or altar. We tend to say things we later regret.

Gratitude to Creator /Gran Mét / Olodumare (Dawn or Eve Affirmation for Letting Go through appreciation)

My Creator, My Source, Gran Mét, Olodumare, that which is known by many names, I now step into ever increasing and deeper connection with you.
